

A sudden lightning strike sparked a wildfire in the Pine Valley forest.
The dry summer made the flames spread rapidly.
Local firefighters rushed in, supported by helicopters dropping water.
Wild animals fled to safety, and nearby towns evacuated.
After two days of intense battle, the fire was finally contained.
It left behind ashes but also united the community.